"You don't have to be friends with Vikola and her crew," Gao tells you one day in the comm room, where he is scanning stock values on various worlds. He has so many hovers running, the displays cover the walls and the ceiling. "You have to make them respect you, though. Otherwise you might get left out of a lucrative side deal. Accidentally left behind on an alien world. You see what I'm saying."

You decide:

- I'll challenge Hammer to a game of Z-ball.
- I'll challenge Vikola to a shooting match.
- I'll impress in my own way, with a hilarious hack.
- I'll ask Ny-bat to teach me hand-to-hand—he's the best.
- I'll win at cards.
- I refuse to care what those pirates think of me.

Procedurally Generated Worlds

In Project Hedra worlds are procedurally generated, meaning that worlds are virtually infinite and distinct of each other. This allows for an extreme amount of replayability since no world has the same characteristics as the previous one, this combined with the beautiful low-poly look of the world makes exploring an enjoyable part of the game.
